

Talent Strategy Council

The Learning Forum's Talent Strategy Council is made up of a select group of global companies and government organizations that meets three times a year to share innovative strategies and practical ideas to build leadership capabilities throughout the organization. It is made up of CHROs and heads of Talent Management.

Discussion topics include Accelerating Leader Development, Succession, High Potentials, Coaching, Assessments and related programs.

Council membership and member benefits

Membership is by invitation and limited to 20 firms that consist of non-competitive organizations across diverse industries and government. Council participation provides access to peer coaching, formal and informal benchmarking, and insights from leading researchers and practitioners.

Our council members tell us that the best and most unique benefit is found in the face-to-face interaction and candid and confidential dialogue with their industry peers. Members use this as a highly effective supplement to the use of outside consultants, thereby saving time and money on major change initiatives.

Current organizations include AT Kearney, API Group, Cisco, Comcast, Deloitte, Discover, Disney, El Pollo Loco, Google, Hasbro, JPM Chase, Liberty Mutual, Novartis, S&P Global, Sewell, State Farm, TJX, Warner Media Group, and US Army.

Spring 2019 Meeting

The Talent Strategy Council meets on May 13 -15 in Denver, CO and will be hosted by Comcast.

About the Learning Forum:

The Learning Forum Councils are for the senior-most executives in charge of one of the following areas: Foresight, Innovation, Talent Strategy, HR Technology, HR Operations, Knowledge Management, Workforce Planning and Analytics, or Digital Workplace. The focus is to assemble the right mix of senior executives, with the appropriate knowledge and authority, for an extremely effective network of peers. You will find more information on our website. www.thelearningforum.org